We Need To See You Among The Guests Make Your Plans To Join Cousins From Across The Country Latest Edition Offers Tentative Schedules and all the information you need to make your arrangements. See you in July !!

The planning of the fourth Vogler Reunion continues as the date rapidly approaches. With the ever tightening schedule, it is imperative that we all begin to communicate our intentions for the upcoming events. On page two you will find an itinerary for the weekend of July 18-20, 2003. Winston-Salem, NC will be the backdrop once again for our family's gathering. The Hawthorne Inn will be the main focus, with the majority of the scheduled events occurring in the Sycamore Ballroom. The Hawthorne Inn is located just around the corner from our "ancestral home" of Old Salem. Both the reunion and Old Salem will share a "new face". Old Salem has opened several new exhibits since our last reunion, including the Timothy Vogler gun shop, and the multi-million dollar, state of the art, Visitors Center which has just opened. The PCVF has a new face to unveil at the reunion as well, as you can see on page 3, in the final chapter of a three part series from Fred Vogler.

The Hawthorne Inn is holding a block of rooms at a special Philip Christoph Vogler Foundation Reunion Rate of $79.00/night (either a double or king /non smoking). These rooms will only be held until June 18, 2003, so we need to make our reservations now!! The weekend begins with a Vogler Golf Outing Friday afternoon, followed by the Reunion Volunteers Dinner and Board Meeting Friday evening. Saturday is full of activity in the Sycamore Ballroom with entertainment, displays of family artifacts, family history, and offerings from family craftsman. Throughout the day a silent auction will take place with one of the items being a Vogler book (Descendants of Philipp Christoph..) mint copy, still in plastic wrap. The Reunion banquet, pre-paid meal, will follow Saturday night. The program that evening will feature NC State Senator and cousin Ham Horton as our Keynote speaker, as well as representatives from Old Salem, and the big "unveiling" of the foundations latest find.

This is an exciting and important time for our foundation. We need to share our "common thread" with our younger generations. In this time of uncertainty in the world, we need to stress our common link, that bond of family.

Mystery Revealed: Conclusion of Three Part Series

By Dr. Frederick W. Vogler

Part 3 of 3

So just what exactly was the precious family heirloom that Heather Crain mailed from Pensacola to John and Betty Vogler Houston in Charlotte this past August? Although they had been told in advance what to expect, they were still amazed and delighted to open that envelope and discover a handsome 5" x 7" color photograph enlargement of Heather's family's miniature portrait of none other than our pioneer ancestor Philip Christoph Vogler himself. Although neither name nor date appears on the original portrait itself or on this reproduction, for the past two centuries he has been identified as the subject of that miniature that had been so lovingly preserved in its protective locket before being copied in order to be shared with the rest of his present descendants.

He is depicted as a dignified, smiling man of short to medium height who appears to be in his 30s, wearing clothing that was in style in Colonial America during the mid-Eighteenth Century as was the hairstyle shown. Since at that approximate age he would still have been living in Broad Bay (now Waldoboro) in Maine as part of a necessarily rough and primitive pioneer society, it seems rather unlikely that such a frontiersman would have had the opportunity or inclination to sit for a portrait intended as a decorative object rather than a practical, utilitarian one. However, it may well be that this painting was done sometime after he and his family moved to North Carolina in 1770. At that time he would have been in his late 40s and now part of a vigorous, productive Moravian community soon to boast many artistically gifted, skilled craftsmen, including several of his own sons, grandsons, and later descendants. In such an atmosphere, it is reasonable to suppose that a talented artist could have chosen to paint him retrospectively as he had appeared earlier in life before becoming prominent in Wachovia's Friedland community or even after his final retirement in Bethania, where he died in 1790.

Whatever the circumstances of that portrait's actual creation may have been, we are in the presence of a long-established and highly specific family tradition that has respectfully preserved it for posterity as being the likeness of our ancestor Philipp Christoph Vogler. How fortunate we all are now to be allowed to share his only known image thanks to the generosity of Heather and her immediate family.

Vogler Family Golf Outing Planned for Friday July 18

Please advise me as soon as you can so arrangements can be made. We want to make this event a special kick off to a great weekend. Send name and contact information, along with a honest handicap to
