Sixth PCVF Family Reunion July 19, 2008 At The Children's Center 2315 Coliseum Drive Winston-Salem, NC

Daytime Activities 10AM to 4 PM—FREE
Buffet Dinner/Program 6PM—Pre-Paid Ticket Reservations

Our PCVF Family Reunion will again be held in Winston-Salem, NC. This time, at the Children's Center. Many thanks to Cindy Vogler Smith, who teaches there, for our location.

Come talk with your ancestors Philipp Christoph (Steve Smith), Samuel (Jerry Vogler, Jr.) and Christoph (Christopher Paul) at this reunion! Volunteers will be portraying, in character, Philipp Christoph and his children. During the Daytime Activities each ancestor will have "table-top" information on that particular genealogy line as listed in our Philipp Christoph Vogler Book to help you "fill in the blanks". We will need 5 more people for the remaining PCV children. So, if you would like to portray your particular "ancestral child" of Philipp Christoph, please let us know.

Daytime Activities will run from 10 am to 4 pm. In addition to the ancestry tables we will also have our Talent Show, Silent Auction, and Vogler T-Shirts, Coffee Mugs, & Tote Bags, Signed & Numbered Prints by Artists Peggy Vogler Sutphin & Jerry Vogler, Jr as advertised in our Vogler Collectibles for donations. Our talented Vogler Vendors, who give 20% of their earnings will also have "table-top" displays of various items for your choosing.

Our Silent-Auction, started at last reunion, will help to defray expenses associated with the reunion. Bids will open at 10 am ending at 5:30pm. Final Bids by envelope will take place from 5:30 pm to 6:30 pm. Results of the Auction will be announced at the end of our dinner program. If you have anything to donate to the Silent-Auction, please see inside article.

Banquet Dinner/Program will be served buffet style at 6pm by The Five Loaves Catering. Menu includes Barbecue Pork/sauce, hamburger buns, coleslaw, baked beans, potato salad, tea, lemonade, & coffee; dessert choice of peach cobbler, brownie, & banana pudding.

Pre-paid Ticket Dinner Reservations will be in our May Newsletter and on our website www.voglerfoundation.org. Reunion Dinner Costs are: Adults $16.00 (ages 13 yrs and up)
Children $8.00 (ages 6 thru 12)

Children ages 5 and under will be free. Our Foundation will be paying a percentage of each meal and gratuities in order to keep family dinner costs as low as possible. After dinner, PCVF presents our Sixth Reunion Program and Talent Show. Don't be shy, agree to share your talent with your extended Vogler Family for just 3 to 5 minutes. We may have a great surprise for you; Heather Crain-Schultz, owner of the Philipp Christoph Vogler locket, may attend wearing the locket!

GERMANY: PHILIPP CHRISTOPH VOGLER'S GERMAN ANCESTORS By Dr. Frederick W. Vogler

(Revised and updated since first published in 1994 as Chapter I Part B of Descendents of Philipp Christoph Vogler
[ed. Charles M. Vogler, Camden, Maine: Penobscot Press])

THIRD INSTALLMENT:

About twenty miles east of the Rhine River and slightly less than that from the historic city of Karlsruhe, the quiet old town of Gondelsheim lies in the southwestern corner of modern Germany, in a district now attached to the modern state of Baden-Wuerttemberg but long a part of the medieval Palatinate, one of a cluster of feudal domains making up the crazy-quilt jumble of the Holy Roman Empire prior to German unification as a single nation-state in the late Nineteenth Century. Gondelsheim appears to have enjoyed remarkable stability during the last two centuries, with census figures showing a gradual increase in its population from about 1300 inhabitants to about 1700 in the post-World War II period. One noteworthy change, however, is to be seen in its church-membership statistics. Although Gondelsheim became and remained a virtually all-Protestant community during the first two centuries after the Reformation, with even its Jewish population outnumbering its tiny Roman Catholic population by a 10-to-1 ratio early in the 1800s, the demographic upheaval caused by the Allied victory in World War II has now produced a significant Roman Catholic population of several hundred inhabitants in the town. This group is largely made up of ethnic German refugees expelled by other countries from eastern districts like Silesia and the Sudetenland. As for Gondelsheim's economy, even today it remains primarily agricultural, with no major industry in its immediate vicinity. It should be noted that the original spelling of its name was "Gundelsheim" (reflecting its local pronunciation), enough of a difference to keep us from identifying it as our German ancestral home until as recently as 1980 when we finally learned that it was indeed the same place.

It was to this town (at the time still spelled "Gundelsheim") that Rudolf Vogler made his way from Switzerland a little over 300 years ago. His name appears for the first time as a town resident in the Lutheran parish register on February 5, 1695, on the occasion of his marriage as a Swiss widower to Anna Maria Strauss, German widow of Georg Bartel Keller. Fifteen months later, his first child by this new marriage was born, a daughter named Anna Barbara. But the parish register notes that her baptism had to be performed in the nearby town of Bretten and by a Calvinist minister rather than the family's own Lutheran pastor because of the occupation of Gondelsheim by French soldiers who had invaded the district during the ongoing Nine Years' War (or War of the League of Augsburg). As it happened, Louis XIV had claimed the Palatinate for France and himself as the brother-in-law of the Duchess of Orleans, herself the daughter of the German Elector Palatine, whose capital city of Heidelberg lay just a few miles to the north of Gondelsheim itself. Since Louis XIV had outlawed any form of public worship other than Roman Catholicism in France eleven years earlier by his revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685, his army seems not to have been disposed to permit such Protestant rites as public baptism in foreign areas under its control.

Twenty years later, in 1715, Anna Barbara was married in Gondelsheim to Johann Georg Kuehne, a man described in the parish register as a citizen of Chur in the Grisons Canton of eastern Switzerland, a union that must have pleased her own Swiss father Rudolph. As a matter of fact, that same register reveals the presence in Gondelsheim at that time of several other Swiss natives who had somehow found their way there, with fully a dozen entries mentioning them during the period from 1692 to 1719, part of a substantial number of Swiss known to have settled at that time in what is now southwestern Germany and who were called Swiss Palatines as a group. In 2003, we had the good fortune to establish contact with Andreas Bischoff of Berlin, Germany, whose wife Sabine is a direct descendant of Anna Barbara Vogler Kuehne and whose family continued to live in Gondelsheim for several generations before moving first to Heidelberg, then years later to far-off Berlin. As it happens, Andreas Bischoff has established a genealogical website (www.family.bischoff.de) of great value to us since it traces his wife's recorded Vogler ancestry in Switzerland and Germany as well as his own Bischoff ancestry, allowing us to fill in many gaps in what we had been able to learn ourselves up until four years ago.

In 1698, two years after Anna Barbara's birth, the Gondelsheim parish register reports the birth and baptism of Rudolf's and Anna Maria's first son, Hans Georg, who in turn was to become Philipp Christoph's father 25 years later. Over the next ten years, another son and three daughters were to be born to Rudolf and Anna Maria, all of whom died in early childhood. As a young man, Hans Georg married a woman named Catharina, by whom he was to have five sons and a daughter during the period from 1723 to 1732. Their first child was Philipp Christoph himself, born on April 2, 1723 and baptized soon after, according to the parish register. Philipp Christoph's mother died in 1735, three weeks before the death of her Swiss father-in-law Rudolf. In July 1736, Hans Georg married again in the nearby town of Maulbronn, this time to a woman named Anna Maria Klingslin, by whom he had one child who survived infancy, a daughter named Maria Margaretha, born in 1738.

This half-sister of Philipp Christoph was later to undertake a life of far-ranging migration that in some ways resembled his own, although hers was to take her in the opposite direction from his. Forty-two years after the departure of her father and eldest half-brother for North America, Maria Margaretha Vogler Osswald left home in 1784 with her husband and children to join a group of others from the same region of southwestern Germany in order to take advantage of the Austrian Empress Maria Theresa's offer of a new home as settlers in a border area of her empire in what is now northern Serbia just south of the present Hungarian frontier and not far from the Romanian frontier to the northeast. As in the case of those other German pioneers in North America who had founded the town of Broad Bay (now Waldoboro) on the coast of Maine and soon thereafter the Moravian congregation town of Salem (now part of Winston-Salem) in North Carolina, these settlers were assigned to organize a new town made up of ethnic Germans of similar backgrounds and traditions, in this case as part of a buffer being created between the Slavic and Germanic areas of the Austrian Empire. That town, later given the Serbian name of Crvenka, was to remain an outpost of German language and culture until the end of World War II in 1945. Among Maria Margaretha Vogler's Osswald descendants, some are known to have come at some point to the United States and settled in the area of Springfield, Ohio. At any rate, both Philipp Christoph and his half-sister, having been permanently separated early in life, were to end their days a little over two centuries ago in remarkably similar circumstances far from their Gondelsheim birthplace and even farther from each other, one in the southeastern United States, the other in the Balkans of central Europe. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Easter Sunrise Service in Old Salem is a continuing tradition and one rich in deep spiritual significance, and has been held in Winston-Salem since 1772. Since the beginning of our Philip Christoph Vogler Foundation in 1986, it has become a tradition for our members to attend the Easter Sunrise Service as a group creating a time of fellowship with family and friends in the same historic home place where our ancestors lived. It is also a time of joy, excitement, anticipation, reflection, praise and worship—sometimes all at once.

Come join us as we continue the tradition of celebrating Easter in this historic place.

Hope to see old and new faces alike at our Easter Celebration, in Old Salem.

KID'S KORNER

Sonja
Houston,
Editor

Hello! My name is Christina Rogers and I am 11 years old. I am the daughter of William and Ellen Rogers and the granddaughter of Frances and the late Herbert Vogler.

I really like to play basketball, and this year, there were only 2 girls on my team. The 2nd most exciting thing that I like to do is listen to different kinds of music. I love to go to the beach with my family, walk on the beach, and feel the sand in between my toes. I like to walk along the beach and look for seashells too. I also like to fish. My aunt has a pool, so I love to go swimming in her pool and have a good time. I like to watch TV and some of my favorite programs are Nick, Disney, MTV, and VH1. A lot of my friends invite me over for sleepovers and then I invite them over to my house to spend the night with me. My mom lets me chill out with my friends. I love to shop for clothes and shoes with my mom! I collect stuffed animals, particularly Ty stuffed animals, Beanie Babies and Build A Bear.

I also like to travel with my family and school. I went to Williamsburg, VA with my school last year and I also went to Disney World with my family and had a blast! When I was younger I saw Cape Hatteras Lighthouse being moved. At the beach when it's low tide, sometimes my dad takes my family to an island called Sand Dollar Island where you can find lots of sand dollars. I love going to Cape Lookout Lighthouse by boat for a picnic lunch. I also like going to the NC Aquarium and Fort Macon when I'm at Atlantic Beach, NC.

I love going out to eat with my family, especially to La Carreta, Macaroni Grill, Village Tavern and Jimmy's Seafood Grill. My favorite foods are Mexican rice and cheese quesadillas, macaroni and cheese, chicken nuggets, oysters and shrimp, cheeseburgers, French fries and of course Moravian Sugarcake!

These are some of my favorite things I like to do.
